MAN GETS PRISON FOR BATTERING GIRLFRIEND, SHOVING POLICE OFFICER

July 24, 2018

A man will go to prison for battering his girlfriend in the Carpentersville apartment they shared, and then repeatedly shoving the police officer who responded to their home.

41-year-old Markey L. Price on Friday, July 20, 2018, agreed to a sentence of 7 years' imprisonment in the Illinois Department of Corrections in exchange for a guilty plea to aggravated battery to a peace officer, Class 2 felony, and domestic battery, Class A misdemeanor.

Circuit Judge James C. Hallock accepted the plea.

Kane County Assistant State's Attorney Ryan Steger stated in court that at about 5:30 a.m. Jan. 21, 2018, Price and the victim began to argue in the apartment they shared in the 1-99 block of Oxford Road, Carpentersville. Price began to punch and kick the victim. A neighbor heard the commotion and called police. When Carpentersville police responded, Price answered the door and appeared intoxicated. When an officer tried to remove Price from the apartment, Price pushed the officer in the chest and attempted to shut the door in his face. The officer told Price not to push him and continued to direct Price to the hallway. Price pushed the officer a second time, and police arrested him. Police then made contact with the victim in the apartment and observed contusions to the victim's face, arms and legs, a laceration to the victim's right eyebrow, a swollen right eye socket, a swollen upper lip, blood on her lower lip, and blood on her shirt.

Price was eligible for enhanced sentencing on the aggravated battery charge because he previously has been convicted of at least two Class 2 felonies.

According to Illinois law, Price is eligible for day-for-day sentencing. He received credit for 180 days served in the Kane County jail.

Markey L. Price: Age 41 (d.o.b. 12-18-1976), of the 1100 block of Abbott Drive, Elgin
